Welcome to Johns Hopkins University and the Office of Student Financial Services. We value our role in helping support students and their families throughout their Hopkins careers. This guidebook is provided to help you understand our policies, the expectation from your family, and the resources available to you. We suggest that you read it thoroughly, as it will answer many of your questions and give you a better understanding of how financial aid works. Our office staff is also available to answer your questions; you can reach us by calling (410) 516-8028, by e-mail at fin_aid@jhu.edu, or by visiting in person at 146 Garland Hall.

The Basics

Johns Hopkins University assistance is offered with the understanding that parents and students will contribute to educational costs to the extent they are able. Your family contribution for institutional financial aid is calculated by our staff, using the information reported on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and the College Scholarship Service (CSS) PROFILE. All applications for federal and institutional financial aid are verified for accuracy of income reported. All U.S. citizens or permanent residents must have accurate Social Security numbers, and males must be registered with the Selective Service.

The family contribution consists of a parental expectation and a student expectation. Your family’s ability to pay is subtracted from the total cost of education for the year. The net amount is your financial aid eligibility or financial need. (You may calculate your estimated financial need using our Net Price Calculator – https://finaid.jhu.edu/undergraduate-aid/net-price-calculator.) Johns Hopkins University makes every attempt to meet this eligibility on a funds-available basis, through a combination of grants, low interest loans, and work opportunities. Students who enroll at Johns Hopkins University without a commitment of Johns Hopkins University aid must be aware that priority for Johns Hopkins University funds in subsequent academic years goes to students who receive institutional funding at entrance and have continued need for assistance. Students who submit late or incomplete applications and who are denied assistance should not expect to receive Johns Hopkins University funding in subsequent years, as funds are limited. If funding is available, priority is given to rising seniors and juniors.

International students who apply for need-based aid as freshmen are eligible for renewable scholarship funding based on their financial need, as demonstrated on the International Student Application for Financial Aid or CSS PROFILE and their academic profile, as assessed by Admissions.

The Parent Contribution

A Johns Hopkins University education is an investment that will appreciate in value over the student’s lifetime. As with any long-term investment, there are various programs available to assist you. Many families use a combination of current income, savings, monthly payments, and long-term borrowing to provide for educational expenses. We are here to help support you and your family as you learn about eligibility for financial aid and explore payment options.

Financial aid application forms and supporting documents are used to determine your family’s ability to pay. For each academic year, a family contribution is calculated. Factors that determine family contribution include both taxed and untaxed income, income taxes paid, number of family members, number of siblings in undergraduate school, and asset strength, i.e., value of savings, investments, business, and real estate. Johns Hopkins University follows the basic federal needs analysis formula for all federal aid but makes adjustments to that formula when determining eligibility for Johns Hopkins University grant assistance. Adjustments to the basic federal formula may be made on a case-by-case basis to reflect more accurately your family’s financial strength. Examples of these institutional adjustments are calculating an allowance for high medical or secondary school expenses, evaluating depreciation and business losses, generally disallowing siblings in graduate school, and including home equity in the formula.
The Student Contribution

We assume that students will work during the summer to help pay some of their school expenses. Johns Hopkins University expects most students to contribute a minimum of $1,800 (for new students) and $2,600 (for returning students) from summer employment.

Students are also expected to contribute from their savings and investments. In general, 20 percent of student assets are expected to be available for college costs each year.

Cost of Attendance

We use a standard cost of attendance budget for financial aid purposes to ensure equitable distribution of resources. The budget includes both direct expenses, for which Johns Hopkins University will bill you, such as tuition, fees, room and board if you live on campus, and indirect expenses that you pay out-of-pocket. Books, supplies, personal expenses, travel, and off-campus rent and food are examples of indirect expenses. Costs will vary depending on the type of room and meal plan, as well as travel costs. Students who commute will pay less than students who live on campus. Some students will spend more than our estimates, and others will spend less. Grant assistance is not increased for students who have higher expenses than the estimated costs, but additional loan funds may be available.

Paying Your Bill and Other Costs

The Student Accounts Office provides online access and monthly electronic statements of the student’s bill and balance due. Each month, students, and any other persons the student has authorized, will be emailed when a new statement is available for viewing on the Student Accounts website. New students will be mailed their first statement with instructions for receiving future billing notices by email. All billing will be presented electronically for the remainder of the student’s education at Johns Hopkins University. Students and families may print their bill from the website and make their payments electronically. Anticipated financial aid will appear on the bill and is actually disbursed no earlier than 10 days prior to the start of the semester if your financial aid file is complete. Johns Hopkins University Grants, Federal Pell and other grants, Federal Perkins Loans, Federal Direct Student Loans, and Hacker- man Loans (renewals only) are applied directly against your billed charges. Federal Work-Study and JHU Non-Federal Work Study funds will not be credited on the bill but instead are paid to students semi-monthly in a paycheck for hours worked. Outside scholarships and state grants are credited to the bill.
Financial Aid Documents

• The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is required to determine eligibility for need-based federal aid and need-based JHU aid. The Johns Hopkins code is E00473. The FAFSA may be filed at https://fafsa.gov.

• The College Scholarship Service PROFILE form is required to determine eligibility for need-based JHU aid. The CSS PROFILE code for Hopkins is 5332. The PROFILE may be accessed online at https://cssprofile.collegeboard.org. You will be charged $25.00 by the College Board for an initial application fee. Additional school reports are $16.00.

• Signed copies of all pages of student’s and parents’ 2016 federal income tax returns, including all schedules, attachments, and W-2 forms. Johns Hopkins University uses the College Board’s Institutional Documentation Service (IDOC) to collect copies of parent and student federal income tax returns. After you complete the CSS PROFILE (see above), you will be prompted to submit tax documents through the College Board’s IDOC service. Students and parents who do not file a federal income tax return should complete the non-filer statement. The IDOC website is: https://idoc.collegeboard.com.

All costs for this service are covered by Johns Hopkins University.

• Please do not send tax returns or other documents to the Johns Hopkins University Office of Student Financial Services. Upload all required documents to IDOC in a single packet.

In addition, the following may be required:

• If your parents are separated or divorced, the parent you do not live with must also complete the PROFILE in accordance with the deadlines online if you wish to be considered for need-based JHU financial aid. The PROFILE may be accessed at https://cssprofile.collegeboard.org. An e-mail reminder will be sent to the non-custodial parent. There is a $25 fee to complete this form. The non-custodial parent must submit to the College Board’s IDOC Service a signed copy of his or her 2016 federal income tax return and W-2 forms. Non-custodial parent information may be submitted in a separate packet to IDOC.

• Copies of the tax returns according to the following chart if either parent is self-employed and/or owns a business. These documents should be submitted to the College Board's IDOC Service.

when they are received. (If you are awaiting the arrival of outside aid, you may deduct that amount from the bill as an anticipated credit.) Johns Hopkins University will not bill you for indirect costs such as books and personal expenses, or off-campus rent and meals, even though they are included in your financial aid budget. Therefore, the amount due on your bill will not equal the difference between the cost of attendance and the aid awarded. Some students use part of their family contribution to pay the bill and part to cover the indirect expenses. Others find that the bill is covered by financial aid credits, and the family contribution will be used to cover indirect expenses only.

If your financial aid credits exceed your billed costs, you will be sent a refund of the credit balance to help pay your indirect costs. This may happen when students living off campus are billed only for tuition by Johns Hopkins University and can use some of their aid to pay for off-campus living expenses. Refunds will be sent via the BankMobile Refund Processor to your chosen location. Allow at least 7–10 days to receive your refund. Refunds may also be placed on your JCard by calling the Student Accounts Office at 410-516-8158.

The Parents’ Role

Johns Hopkins University expects parents to help finance their children’s education throughout their undergraduate years. For financial aid purposes, students cannot declare themselves independent of their parents owing to family disagreements, living arrangements, or parent unwillingness to contribute.

In cases where parents are divorced or separated, Johns Hopkins University expects both parents to contribute to educational costs, even if there is no legal order to do so, for institutional aid consideration. We realize that issues of college support may be complicated in divorced or separated families, and evaluate each situation individually. If you believe special circumstances exist in your family, contact your financial aid adviser.
Renewing Your Aid

You must reapply for financial aid each year. Your aid package covers one academic year, and funds are not automatically renewed. Instructions for applying for the upcoming academic year are distributed to current freshman, sophomore, and junior aid recipients via email. The deadline for returning students is May 1, with notification in June. If your aid application is completed late, we cannot guarantee the availability of funding for that year. Late applicants may lose a percentage of grant funding (5 percent for each month the application is delayed).

If you are studying abroad or on a leave of absence, it is your responsibility to access the application forms and submit them by the May 1 deadline.

If you are making satisfactory academic progress (refer to the Satisfactory Academic Progress policy outlined in this brochure), you may expect to have a similar family contribution for eight semesters if:

• Your family’s income and amount of assets are consistent with the previous year.
• The number of family members in the household and in college remains the same.
• Your application is complete by the deadline.

Students who require a ninth semester of institutional grant funding must request support from the assistant dean for academic advising (WSE) or the assistant dean of academic advising (KSAS). Ninth-semester Johns Hopkins University Grant is rarely awarded and is awarded only to students who must complete a ninth semester because of circumstances in their academic career at Johns Hopkins University beyond their control—not for resolving bad grades or taking accelerated coursework.

Students who are readmitted after being dismissed for academic reasons or returning from a leave of absence should notify the Office of Student Financial Services in writing of their intention to return. Renewal of grant funding is not guaranteed but will be considered on a funds-available basis. Hodson Trust and Westgate scholarships are not typically reinstated once lost.

Note: Johns Hopkins University aid for transfer students is limited. Johns Hopkins University grant aid for transfer students admitted as sophomores will be renewable for a maximum of two additional years if need continues. Johns Hopkins University grant aid for transfer students admitted as juniors will be renewable for one additional year if need continues.

Students with a prior bachelor’s degree are eligible only for student loans.

Note: International students should refer to our website, https://finaid.jhu.edu/undergraduate-aid/international-students, for application requirements. International Scholarship funding is limited. Need for financial assistance will be considered in making the admission decision. International students who enroll without assistance are not eligible to apply for assistance in subsequent years.
Your Aid Package

Once your eligibility for aid has been established, Johns Hopkins University offers a financial aid “package,” which may consist of different types of aid from various sources. Depending on your level of need, you may be offered a combination of grants, loans, and work opportunities. Students and any other person the student has authorized may view their financial aid award online using SIS Self-Service, at www.jhu.edu/finaid/self_service.html. Students will receive an email notification anytime their financial aid award has been revised. A student may request a paper copy of their financial aid award by contacting Student Financial Services.

NOTE: SIS Self-Service will not be accessible until the student receives their jhu.edu email address. Newly admitted freshman should access their financial aid and admissions information by logging into mydecision.jhu.edu.

The foundation of an aid package is a “self-help” award of loans and work-study. The average work-study award is $2,700 per year. Self-help amounts will vary and may be higher or lower than the average listed below. For 2018–19, the base loan is:

NOTE: Students may request up to $2,000 of additional unsubsidized loan.

After the self-help has been offered, your remaining financial need is met with grant assistance, depending on the availability of funds. This grant assistance may include a Johns Hopkins University Grant, Federal Pell Grant, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (FSEOG), and state and private scholarships.

Your initial aid package may be revised on the basis of review of your family’s federal income tax return, and receipt of other governmental awards or outside aid, per your request for more loan or work, or on appeal because of changes in circumstances. If a student receives an increase in federal grant funding (Pell Grant or SEOG) or in state-grant funding after the initial aid package, the Johns Hopkins University grant will be reduced on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

Aid packages normally cover the fall and spring semester of the academic year. Listed here are sample aid packages for entering freshmen with different levels of need.

Students who are enrolled for at least six credit hours during the summer at Johns Hopkins University may apply for a Federal Direct Student Loan or Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loan. Community Service and America Reads Federal Work-Study are also available during the summer.

Limited institutional grant assistance may be available for the summer. Pell Grant may also be available for eligible students.
Financial Aid Appeal Process

If financial circumstances are affecting your ability to attend Johns Hopkins, we would like to have the opportunity to reconsider your eligibility for financial aid. Our goal is to offer you the best possible financial aid package based on your family’s current financial situation within the parameters of existing policies, federal regulations and the availability of funds.

An increase in aid is most often the result of financial circumstances that have changed or that we did not know about at the time of your original application. Examples include loss of income, unexpected medical expenses not covered by insurance, and other unusual life events that affect your family’s ability to pay for college.

If you wish to appeal your award based on any of these or similar circumstances, you must submit the Appeal for Additional Aid form and documentation to support the reason for your appeal to the Office of Student Financial Assistance. Contact your aid adviser to initiate the appeal process.

Types of Financial Aid in a Package

Grants/Need-Based Scholarships

Grants are gift aid that does not have to be repaid. Students must enroll full time to maintain eligibility for most of these awards. These gifts come from a variety of sources—federal and state governments, corporations, individual donors, and Johns Hopkins University institutional funds. The amount of the grant depends on your financial need and the availability of funds.

■ Baltimore Scholars. The Baltimore Scholars Program offers scholarships to graduates of Baltimore City Public Schools. Applicants must have resided in Baltimore City and have attended Baltimore City Public Schools for three consecutive years and must be U.S. citizens or Permanent Residents. No separate application is required and applicants should follow the standard procedure for applying for need-based aid. Beginning with the class entering in the fall of 2016, there are two tiers of funding for Baltimore Scholars:
  - Applicants with family incomes of $80,000 or less with typical assets will receive full cost-of-attendance scholarships, covering tuition, room, board, and fees.
  - Applicants with family incomes between $80,000 and $150,000 with typical assets will have their family contributions capped at 10% of family income and will receive loan-free financial aid packages.

■ Bloomberg Scholarships. Bloomberg Scholarships were made possible through a generous gift from Michael Bloomberg, former mayor of New York City, founder of Bloomberg Financial Markets (Bloomberg L.P.), a Johns Hopkins University alumnus (Engineering ’64) and former chairman of the Board of Trustees. Students who receive this highly competitive need-based scholarship will have their normal loan expectation replaced by grant. The scholarship is renewable for up to three additional years based on continued financial need.

■ Clark Scholars. The Clark Scholars Program was created through a partnership between the A. James and Alice B. Clark Foundation and the Whiting School of Engineering (WSE). It is a highly competitive scholarship offered to students enrolled in WSE, with stellar academic ability, significant leadership roles in the classroom and in their community, and a deep interest in service to society. Based on demonstrated financial need, the maximum award is $15,000 and there will be no loan expectation in the student’s financial aid package. The scholarship is renewable for up to three additional years based on continued enrollment in WSE, satisfactory academic progress, maintaining a 3.2 or better cumulative GPA, and active and engaged participation in the program elements.
- Hodson-Gilliam Success Scholarship. The Hodson-Gilliam Success Scholarship is awarded annually to entering freshmen with demonstrated financial need who are outstanding students from underrepresented minority groups, including but not limited to African-American, Hispanic, or Native American students. This scholarship replaces loan and work in the financial aid package for the freshman year and loan in subsequent years and is renewable based on continued financial need.

- Hopkins Academic Success Award. The Hopkins Academic Success Award is a highly competitive need-based award offered to select incoming students who demonstrate exceptional academic achievement and personal qualities. It caps the four-year student loan expectation at $5,000, representing $14,000 in grants, instead of loans. The student loan expectation is: no loan ($0) in the freshman, $1,000 in the sophomore year, $2,000 in the junior year, and $2,000 in the senior year. The grant is based on full-time enrollment, continued financial need, satisfactory academic progress, and is renewable based on continued financial need.

- Johns Hopkins University Grant. These grants are awarded from institutional and endowment funds to students who demonstrate financial need. The amount of the grant varies and may be renewed each year according to your level of need.

- International Scholarship. This institutional scholarship is offered on a funds-available basis to incoming international students who demonstrate both need and merit. Awards are renewable for up to a total of 8 semesters contingent upon full-time enrollment and maintaining satisfactory academic progress. Information is available on the Web at https://finaid.jhu.edu/undergraduate-aid/international-students.

- Federal Pell Grant. This is a direct grant from the federal government that can range from $626 to $5,920 per year. Students must meet the strict federal requirements to be eligible.

- Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (FSEOG). The Federal SEOG program provides grants to students who demonstrate exceptional need. Johns Hopkins University matches the federal funds with additional grant. When awarding FSEOG, the Office of Student Financial Services gives priority to Federal Pell Grant recipients and other students with exceptional need.

- State Scholarships. Students from certain states may be eligible for state grants or scholarships to help fund their education at Johns Hopkins University. Check with your state higher education agency for eligibility requirements. Some states may require a separate scholarship application to be considered for state funds.

  Maryland residents can check the status of their state scholarships online at www.mhec.state.md.us. Students from Maryland must complete the FAFSA by March 1 to be considered for state aid.

  Johns Hopkins University expects all eligible financial aid applicants to apply for state funds. Apply early as each state has a specific deadline and application process. If you do not receive a state grant because of a late application, the grant will not be replaced with Johns Hopkins University Grant funds.

Merit-Based Scholarships

Merit-based scholarships require superior academic achievement in a challenging program, the highest test scores, and demonstrated leadership in school and/or community, state, regional, or national activities.

- Hodson Trust Scholarship. ($36,500 per year) This scholarship is offered to approximately 20 first-year students. It is renewable for up to three additional years of undergraduate study if the recipient maintains a 3.0 cumulative GPA. No separate application is required.

- Charles R. Westgate Scholarship in Engineering. This scholarship provides full tuition for up to two first-year students. It is renewable for up to three additional years of undergraduate study if the recipient remains enrolled in the Whiting School of Engineering and maintains at least a 3.0 cumulative GPA. No separate application is required.
Other Merit Awards

- Army ROTC Scholarship. Army ROTC is offered at Johns Hopkins University. This scholarship covers up to full tuition. Contact the Department of Military Science at (800) JHU-ROTC or visit the Web at www.jhu.edu/rotc for information on this scholarship.

- Air Force ROTC Scholarship. Air Force ROTC may be used at Johns Hopkins University. Air Force training is conducted at the University of Maryland. Call (301) 314-3242 for more information about this scholarship.

Self-Help

A self-help award is a combination of loans and an academic year employment opportunity. Loans must be repaid after you have completed your education. Employment earnings are paid directly to you in a paycheck, based on the number of hours worked.

- Federal Work-Study. Federal Work-Study (FWS), including Community Service and America Reads, is a federally funded program that provides part-time employment for students with financial need. The FWS amount in your aid package is the allotment of money that you may earn during the academic year upon securing an FWS job. FWS awards are not credited to your bill. Students are paid for hours worked in semimonthly paychecks.

  A wide variety of jobs are offered on and off campus and in community service settings. Students are free to choose their own jobs. The rate of pay for FWS jobs is minimum wage and up. Most students work an average of 8 to 10 hours per week, although students may work up to 19.9 hours per week.

  Earnings are taxable and are typically used to help cover expenses such as books, travel, and other personal expenses. FWS job listings, including Community Service and America Reads, are available through the Student Employment Office website at https://studentaffairs.jhu.edu/studentemployment.

  A Student Job Fair is held in early September. In addition to providing money toward college expenses, FWS jobs offer work experience and opportunities to become involved with various on- and off-campus offices and activities.

- JHU Non-Federal Work Study. The JHU Non-Federal Work Study Program enables students who do not qualify for Federal Work Study to work on campus. Students are free to choose their own jobs. The rate of pay is minimum wage and up. Students may work up to 20 hours per week. Earnings are taxable and are typically used to help cover educational expenses such as books, travel, and other personal expenses.

  NOTE: All students are eligible to work on campus regardless of being awarded Federal Work Study or a JHU Non-Federal Work Study award.

- Federal Direct Student Loan. The U.S. Department of Education makes student loans, through Johns Hopkins University, directly to the student for educational expenses. Federal Direct Student Loans have a “fixed variable” interest rate. This means that a new rate will be set each year, effective July 1, and will serve as the fixed rate for all Federal Direct Student Loans disbursed from July 1 through June 30. The interest rate for the 2017–18 year is 4.45 percent. The base subsidized loan amount per year is $3,500 for freshmen, $4,500 for sophomores, and $5,500 for juniors and seniors. Students can also borrow an additional $2,000 unsubsidized loan annually. A 1.066 percent origination fee is deducted from the proceeds of the loan. The origination fee is subject to change with congressional legislation.

  The subsidized Federal Direct Student Loan is need-based, which means the family contribution is used to determine eligibility. The federal government subsidizes the loan by paying the interest while the student is in school.
The unsubsidized Federal Direct Student Loan is not based on financial need, though borrowers must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) to obtain the loan. The interest is not subsidized by the government and may be paid on an ongoing basis while the student is in school. If borrowers choose not to pay the interest during school, it will be deferred and capitalized (added back to the principal) once repayment of principal begins. Loan principal and capitalized interest repayment begins six months after completion of enrollment in post-secondary education.

Students are not required to complete a separate loan application from a bank or other lender. If you are offered a Federal Direct Student Loan as part of your aid package and you accept it, you will receive information about e-signing your master promissory note and completing entrance counseling at https://studentloans.gov. The loan proceeds will be credited to your student account no earlier than 10 days prior to the start of the semester if all federal requirements are met. Students who signed a Federal Direct Loan master promissory note in a previous year are not required to sign a new note in subsequent years.

The Federal Direct Student Loan repayment plans allow several options for repaying the loan through standard, extended, graduated, income-contingent, and income-based repayment plans. Loan repayment information will be sent with the promissory note at time of repayment. Loan repayment information as well as interactive calculators are available on the Web at https://studentloans.gov.

Hackerman Loan (renewals only). The Hackerman Loan is available through the generous gift of Willard Hackerman. It is an interest-free loan offered to Whiting School of Engineering students who demonstrate eligibility. Funds are limited. Borrowers are expected to repay the loan over a period of eight years after completion of studies.

Outside/Private Scholarships and Veterans Benefits

Outside and private scholarships from external organizations can be a valuable source of aid. We want students to get the full value of their scholarships, so you may use your private scholarships to replace the loan and/or work portion of your financial aid package. Johns Hopkins University grants/scholarship aid will only be reduced if the total amount of private scholarship assistance is greater than the loan and work portion of your financial aid offer. All scholarships must be reported to Student Financial Services. More information about this policy may be found online may be found at https://finaid.jhu.edu.

All students who receive government and entitlement grants—i.e., a Federal Pell Grant, ROTC, state scholarships, and employer tuition benefits—and whose need was fully met in the original financial aid package, will have the amount of their Johns Hopkins University–funded grants reduced by the full amount of the outside grant. For example, a student who receives a state scholarship of $500 will have his or her Johns Hopkins University–funded grants reduced by $500. The total amount of financial aid will remain the same.

Hopkins participates in all veterans programs, including Yellow Ribbon and the Post-9/11 GI Bill. Your eligibility for institutional aid may be revised if the combination of JHU aid and veterans benefits exceeds your financial need (as calculated by JHU). Students may choose to reduce their federal work study and/or federal loan, but are not required to do so.

Alternative Financing

For families that do not qualify for financial aid or that will need help financing their family’s contribution, there are several alternative financing options:

■ Monthly Payment Plan. Parents are able to budget up to the cost of tuition and on-campus room and board in equal monthly installments beginning June 1 with Tuition Management Systems (TMS), a private payment plan service under contract with Johns Hopkins University. No interest is charged. There is a once per semester fee. Interested families should contact TMS at https://jhuhomewood.afford.com/Home or by calling (800) 722-4867.

■ Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loan. Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loans are federally guaranteed loans available to parents of dependent undergraduate students. There is no financial need requirement to receive these loans. Parents of undergraduate students may borrow up to the total cost of attendance for the academic year less any financial aid already offered. A credit review is required, but there is no “debt to income” review.

The interest rate is “fixed variable” at 7 percent for the 2017–18 year. A new rate is set annually, effective July 1, and will serve as the fixed rate for all Parent PLUS Loans disbursed from July 1 through June 30. An origination/default fee of 4.264 percent will be deducted from each disbursement of the loan. The origination fee is subject to change with congressional legislation. Parents are encouraged to determine the amount they wish to borrow for the entire year, and the loan will be disbursed in equal amounts directly to the student’s account at the beginning of the fall and spring terms.

Standard repayment begins 60 days after the loan is fully disbursed. Fully disbursed means that all installments (fall and spring) have been paid. Interest begins accruing after the first disbursement. Parents also have the option to begin repayment six months after the student ceases to be enrolled at least half-time. Consolidation options and extended or graduated repayment plans are available. There is no pre-payment penalty.

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) must be completed in order to apply for a PLUS Loan. The parent borrower begins the PLUS application process by completing a request for a Direct PLUS Loan at https://studentloans.gov. New PLUS borrowers will also need to sign a promissory note at https://studentloans.gov.

■ Part-time employment. This is another resource available to the student to help meet the annual cost of education. Information about part-time opportunities, on- and off-campus jobs, and paid internships is available on the Student Employment Services website at www.jhu.edu/stujob. Most students are able to locate jobs on campus regardless of Federal Work-Study eligibility.
Other Financing Options

- Home Equity. Home equity loans (or lines of credit) may be the least expensive interest-deductible loans available. There are many sources for these loans.

- Life Insurance. Borrowing from whole life insurance may have a lower fixed interest rate than other sources. Contact your life insurance holder for information specific to your policy.

- Prepaid College Tuition and Savings Plans. Many local and state governments and private companies offer prepaid college tuition plans that allow families to “lock-in” current tuition costs at in-state public colleges and universities. These funds are not subject to federal tax when used to pay tuition and fees associated with private colleges and universities. Families begin paying into the fund years before students are ready to attend a college or university. Savings plans, or 529 plans, are sometimes considered in calculating need. They are regarded as an asset of the person holding the plan and should be reported as such. For more information on savings and prepaid plans, contact your state higher education agency. Johns Hopkins University is a member of the Private College 529 Plan, a national consortium of private colleges and universities. For more information about this plan, visit www.privatecollege529plan.org.

Refunds

All financial aid credits are scheduled to be disbursed directly to your student account no earlier than 10 days prior to the start of the semester (with the exception of work-study earnings). If the aid applied to your bill exceeds the charges, you will receive a refund from the Office of Student Accounts. Refunds are given only for funds which have actually been received by Johns Hopkins University and credited to your account. The refund may take 7–10 days from the start of classes.

Students who withdraw during an academic term will receive a tuition refund based on the policy specified in the JHU undergraduate and graduate academic catalog. The financial aid award will be adjusted on the basis of the actual charges incurred during the semester. Funds from Federal Title IV programs will be returned to the government according to federal regulations.

The refund will be calculated from the date the student submits a written statement of withdrawal to the assistant dean of academic advising of either the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences or the Whiting School of Engineering.

No refund will be granted to students suspended or dismissed for disciplinary reasons. The university reserves the right to dismiss a student whose academic standing or general conduct is considered unsatisfactory.

Return of Title IV Funds Policy

The Office of Student Financial Services is required by federal statute to recalculate federal financial aid eligibility for students who withdraw, drop out, are dismissed, or take a leave of absence prior to completing 60 percent of a payment period or term. The federal Title IV financial aid programs must be recalculated in these situations. For detailed information about this policy refer to our website https://finaid.jhu.edu/r2t4.
Tax Incentives/Information

There are several tax incentives available to families. A summary of these federal tax benefits from 2016 is available at https://www.nasfaa.org/2016_tax_year.

- American Opportunity Credit allows a tax credit of up to $2,500 to offset the cost of tuition, fees, and textbooks. Families with joint incomes below $180,000 or single filer incomes below $90,000 are eligible.

- Lifetime Learning Tax Credit allows up to a $2,000 tuition tax credit. It is available to undergraduates and graduate students. Families with joint incomes below $130,000 and single filer incomes below $65,000 are eligible.

- Tuition and Fees Tax Deduction is a tuition tax deduction of up to $4,000 for qualified higher education expenses, available for taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of up to $80,000 for single filers and $160,000 for married taxpayers filing jointly.

- Interest on Student Loans. Taxpayers with joint incomes below $160,000 and single filers below $80,000 may deduct up to $2,500 in annual interest paid on education loans.

Other educational tax benefits include reduced tax penalties on the cashing of certain savings bonds and early retirement distributions when used for qualified education expenses.

Consult a tax advisor to determine your eligibility for tax incentives.

The Johns Hopkins University Tax Office will issue an annual 1098-T to assist with reporting the American Opportunity and Lifetime Learning tax credits and/or tuition deductions on your tax return. This form is also accessible online at www.1098t.com.

All scholarships and grants that exceed the cost of tuition, fees, books, and supplies are considered by the IRS taxable income to the student. It is the student’s responsibility to maintain records in order to determine potential tax liability.

Federal Work-Study earnings received during in-school sessions are not subject to FICA withholding, but they are subject to federal and state income taxes. You will be issued a W-2 by January 31. The Johns Hopkins University Tax Office at (443) 997-8442 is available to assist students with tax withholding forms and general tax information.
Satisfactory Academic Progress

Students who receive Federal Student Financial Aid must, in accordance with federal, state, and institutional requirements, be in good standing and maintain satisfactory academic progress (SAP) toward obtaining their degree or certificate. This policy applies to students applying for financial aid for semesters/periods of enrollment beginning with the fall 2011 semester and beyond.

Johns Hopkins University Scholarship and Grant funds are also contingent upon achieving SAP as defined by the following policy. However, these funds are awarded for a maximum of eight semesters. Under some circumstances, a ninth semester may be awarded upon appeal.

To be able to receive financial aid at the Johns Hopkins University schools of Arts & Sciences and Engineering, undergraduate students must demonstrate satisfactory progress toward their academic objectives, as measured by:

- Minimum cumulative grade-point average (GPA) – Qualitatively, on a scale of 4.0, undergraduate students must maintain a minimum 2.0 cumulative GPA. Grades from all coursework attempted at Johns Hopkins University schools of Arts & Sciences and Engineering are included in the GPA calculation. Students must also earn a 2.0 semester GPA.

- Minimum cumulative completion rate/Pace – Quantitatively, financial aid recipients must maintain a cumulative completion rate of earned credits equal to or exceeding 67 percent of the credits attempted. Students must also earn 12 credits each semester (except in the summer term).

- Maximum time frame to completion of degree or certificate – To satisfy the maximum time-frame standard, students must complete their required coursework within 150 percent of the published program length (e.g., 180 credits attempted for a 120-credit program).

Financial aid recipients are reviewed for SAP at the end of each traditional semester of enrollment (fall, spring, summer). Student Financial Services will contact students (in writing) who do not meet the SAP standards and are placed either in a warning status or lose eligibility.

Financial Aid Warning Status: Students who fail to meet the minimum cumulative and semester grade-point average standard or fail to meet the minimum standards for Pace will be placed on Financial Aid Warning for the subsequent semester/period of enrollment. Students are still eligible for financial aid during the “Warning” semester.

Financial Aid Suspension: Students who, while on Financial Aid Warning, fail to maintain the minimum standards for Pace and/or fail to maintain the minimum cumulative and semester GPA requirement will be placed on Financial Aid Suspension status for subsequent semesters/periods of enrollment. No financial aid will be disbursed during subsequent semesters/periods of enrollment until the student regains financial aid eligibility.

Students who do not complete their program within the maximum time frame lose eligibility for financial aid and are placed on Financial Aid Suspension status.

Reinstatement of financial aid after a student is placed on Financial Aid Suspension status is achieved in one of the following ways:

1. The student submits a written letter of appeal and the Appeals Committee grants the appeal. The student is then placed on Financial Aid Probation for the next semester/period of enrollment and is eligible for aid during the Financial Aid Probation semester. If the appeal is approved but the committee has determined that the student will not be able to meet the SAP standards within one semester/period of enrollment, the student will be placed on Financial Aid Probation with an academic plan which if followed will ensure that the student is able to meet the SAP standards by a specific point in time. Follow the instructions for appealing on the SAP Appeal Form.

2. The student registers for coursework while on Financial Aid Suspension status, pays for tuition and fees without the help of student financial aid, and does well enough in the coursework to satisfy all the satisfactory academic progress standards at the end of the subsequent semester(s)/period(s) of enrollment.

NOTE: Students who are beyond the maximum time frame to completion may regain financial aid eligibility on a semester-by-semester basis through the appeal process.

Financial aid recipients must meet the financial aid SAP standards (as described above), which are at least as stringent as the schools’ academic policy standards, in accordance with federal Title IV law. Financial aid probation is not the same as academic probation. Students should consult the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences and the Whiting School of Engineering Standards for Good Academic Standing for more information on the schools’ academic policies. Students on academic probation may also be on Financial Aid Suspension or Financial Aid Probation status, or they may not be.

For more information about financial aid SAP policy, including the treatment of W, I, AU, F, S, P, Missing Grades, SAP during summer and semesters abroad, repeat coursework, transfer credit, change of major and remedial coursework, and the appeal and academic plan, please visit the Office of Student Financial Services website: https://finaid.jhu.edu.

Study Abroad

If you are planning to study abroad, you must notify the JHU Study Abroad Office and the Office of Student Financial Services well in advance of your trip to make sure all aspects of your program are considered.

Billing: The Office of Student Accounts will bill the student the cost of their program and a study abroad fee (12 percent of Johns Hopkins University tuition). If housing costs are a part of the program, they will be billed to the student’s account. If the student participates in the student health insurance plan, this will also be billed. Students will pay the university directly.

Johns Hopkins University will make direct payments to the study abroad program for the program fee and housing fees (if applicable). Students are responsible for additional costs, including housing, airfare, personal expenses, meals, travel, and other incidental expenses.

Financial Aid: The Office of Student Financial Assistance will modify a student’s cost of attendance based on the financial aid budget provided to us by the Office of Study Abroad for the semester the student is abroad. Johns Hopkins University grant assistance will be based on the adjusted cost of the study abroad program. If the cost of the program is lower than that of Johns Hopkins University the university grant assistance will be reduced. Johns Hopkins University grant assistance will not be modified if the cost of the study abroad program is greater than that of Johns Hopkins University. Only loan assistance is available to cover additional expenses. All financial aid (excluding Federal Work-Study and JHU Non-Federal Work Study) may be applied toward the cost of your program. Financial aid will be credited to the student’s account. Students with a credit balance may request a refund online at www.jhu.edu/studacct. Refund requests cannot be processed any earlier than 10 days prior to the first day of classes at Johns Hopkins University. If a student’s program has a different start date, you should make financial plans accordingly.
Concurrent Programs and Financial Aid

Some academic departments offer concurrent degree programs that allow students to pursue a bachelor's degree and a master's degree at the same time. Eligibility for financial aid will vary depending on whether a student is classified as a graduate or undergraduate student. Students in concurrent programs are classified as undergraduate for the first four years (eight semesters of full-time study) only. Students are considered to be graduate students in the fifth year of study, and are no longer eligible for undergraduate JHU grant assistance. This includes Bloomberg Scholarship, Hodson Scholarship, and Westgate Scholarship.

Graduate students may be eligible for partial tuition waivers or for research and teaching assistantships. The amounts of these awards are determined by the academic department or program. Graduate students may also qualify for federal student loans and/or work-study, and should follow the graduate aid application procedures.

Loan limits for the federal student loan programs change when a student’s classification changes from undergraduate to graduate. The annual maximum of combined subsidized and unsubsidized Federal Direct Student Loan for an undergraduate junior or senior is $7,500. The annual maximum Federal Direct Student Loan for a graduate student (in any year of his or her program) is $20,500. A student who is classified as a graduate student is no longer eligible for undergraduate federal student aid including Federal Pell Grant, Federal SEOG, subsidized Federal Direct Student Loans, or Federal Direct Parent PLUS loans.

For information about the concurrent degree programs in the Krieger School of Arts & Sciences and the Whiting School of Engineering, see your academic advisor or the website below.

Student Rights and Responsibilities

You have the right to:
• Privacy and confidentiality of records.
• Be notified of any changes in your aid and the reason for the change.
• Ask for an explanation of anything you don’t understand.

You have the responsibility to:
• Read, understand, and keep copies of all financial aid documents.
• Notify our office of any changes in your family’s financial status.
• Notify us of any change in your attendance status, name, or address.
• Notify us of any outside awards you receive.
• Comply with the terms of your student loans.
• Stay informed about deadlines and procedures—read any correspondence you receive from our office.

T. I. P.
(To Insure Promptness)

You can avoid delays in payment of your financial aid if you do the following after receiving your award letter:
• Read your financial aid award letter carefully.
• Notify us of any outside resources you know you will receive if they are not listed on your award letter.
• If you wish to decline the award or you are requesting a revision of loan amount, return your signed award letter to the Office of Student Financial Services or log in to your ISIS account to decline or revise awards.
• Make sure that you provide requested or required forms.
• Be sure you electronically sign your promissory note and complete your entrance interview for your loans.

By necessity, Hopkins reserves the freedom to change without notice any programs, policies, requirements, or regulations published in this brochure.

Admissions Policy
Johns Hopkins University admits as regular students only persons who have a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent, or persons who are beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in Maryland.

To be eligible for federal student aid, students who are beyond the age of compulsory attendance but who do not have a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent must meet ability-to-benefit criteria or meet the student eligibility requirements for a student who is home-schooled.

Equal Opportunity Policy
The Johns Hopkins University admits students of any race, color, gender, religion, age, national or ethnic origin, disability, marital status or veteran status to all of the rights, privileges, programs, benefits, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the university. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, gender, marital status, pregnancy, ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, veteran status, or other legally protected characteristics in any student program or activity administered by the university, including the administration of its educational policies, admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other university administered programs or in employment.
